The Headmaster's Message

To the School of 2004-2005,

It is March 18th, 2005 and I am typing like crazy to meet Mr. Crowther's deadline.

I write in the context of the time. The Spring Concert was a week ago, the 24-Hour Famine, the week before, and very soon, our students will be scattered around the globe.

In a couple of weeks we'll all be back in Lennoxville, wishing the dregs of snow to melt, so we can hear the thud of the ruck, the whack of the well-hit golf ball, and the "Ten-Shun" of Cadets.

But now, I look back at all we have done so far.

I try to see it all. I try to know what is happening. I try to catch the people at BCS getting it right. And I know that no matter how much I see, no matter how much I know, I miss a lot. I know this because every now and then I'm surprised by something completely unexpected. Mr. Dutton approached me the other day. "You've got to see this," he said as he thrust out a photocopy of a page of a Physics text book.

I looked at the page, and noticed a thinly drawn caricature of Mr. Dutton, writing on the blackboard, clearly identifiable by shape and hairline. "That's not all," he said. "This was drawn on the flyleaf!" and he showed me the cartoon printed on this page.

Oh no, I thought, he's going to convince me that an immovable object can stare down an irresistible force... or is it something about the alignment of the planets... I looked at the page, and noticed a thinly drawn caricature of Mr. Dutton, writing on the blackboard, clearly identifiable by shape and hairline. "That's not all," he said. "This was drawn on the flyleaf!" and he showed me the cartoon printed on this page. Immediately, I recognised myself; immediately, I wondered if I actually looked that bad; and immediately, I burst out laughing. What a way to discover a sense of humour and a hidden talent – a talent that had no intention of being discovered! It makes me wonder what else is out there.

The message is simple: never underestimate the potential that is vibrantly alive all around us every because these students and staff members didn't draw attention to themselves; they just got on with a worthwhile effort to raise funds for a worthwhile cause – the Stephen Lewis Foundation.

These events were recent events, but I have not forgotten all the sports, the Players' Club, the success of Inscape, the work students do for their Duke of Edinburgh Awards, the work students do for each other through things like Carnival, Student Life and so on...

I have this year insisted that you are what you do, and you do a lot.

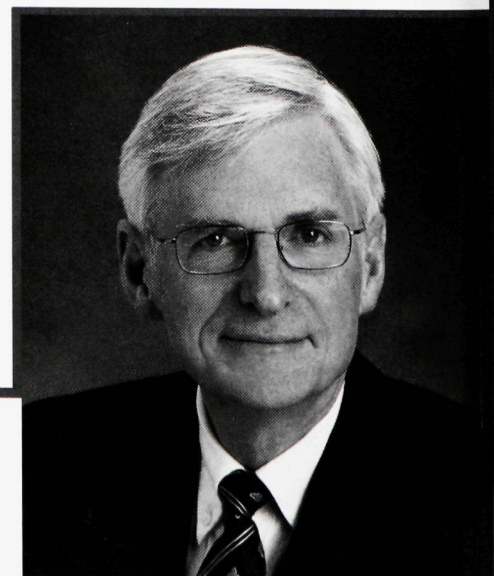

An excellent example of this is Major David Turner who retires at the end of this year. Never a self-promoter, he commands our respect and our attention because he is fair, thoughtful, honest – a straight shooter – who brings these qualities to all he does. For over 29 years, he has maintained the #2 BCS Cadets Corps as a vibrant pillar of our school, he has directed athletics, served as Houseparent, inspired students and staff alike to get involved, to go the extra mile for the school, for each other and for themselves. He has done all this with a steady sense of humour and with no need to draw attention to himself. Put simply, we know who he is because we see what he does. His is an example of the character that we at BCS aspire to.

We, the School of 2004-2005 are privileged to have been his last school. We must carry his example with us as we go forward.

day at BCS. What a privilege to work, to study, to live in such a place.

What a production the Spring Concert was! The Senior and Stage Bands were excellent as usual; the St. Martin's Chapel Choir sang with joy – they had fun! – but the stars for me were the Junior Band. Mr. Jackson told us at Christmas time that they would grow, in talent and confidence and volume and number. They sure did.

What an example the Amnesty International group and the 24-hour famine participants set for us all! If you didn't do it, it was easy to miss

The Prefects of 2004-2005

1. Christiana Fizet

Oh Christiana, our infamous leader. For many of you who wondered how she managed to do it all, I know her secret...she's actually a Superhero in disguise. Her unidentified hair color, her wool socks and Birks and her purple keychain are all attempts to seem normal, sorry Christiana, there's no fooling us. I'd like to wish her good luck on her mission to save the world! BCS is never going to be the same with out you.

2. Mathieu Bouchard

Matty. The handsome, witty, slender and smooth gentleman who blessed us all with his "science humour" was definitely the cool kid of the group. Able to do so many things at once, be it flailing his arms under water, eating cheese in his room, or being surrounded by the ladies, Mat taught us all a lot, and I'll never forget that Buffalo isn't a state because of him. Thanks Matty!

3. Chris Durrant

Chris is a legend in his own time. Who could forget this great orator (it IS NOT an accent!)? Chris has been secretly plotting a socialist revolution at BCS. He has stirred the masses to action with T. Douglas propaganda and, based on his analysis of student spending habits taken from a study of discarded receipts, he plans to turn the Supply Shop into a cooperative. The longevity of Chris's wisdom will forever shape the attitude of BCS students – BEEP!

4. Sarah Henderson

Tall, thin, long blond hair, latest Abercrombie fashions, paintbrush behind her ear, a copy of Inscape tucked under her arm, and three postcards (from Trixie, Mom and Dad) in her blazer pocket: that's Sarah, aka Hendie, or Twin. Sarah is the nicest and truest person there is, our favorite Yankee and future editor of The New Yorker. We'll come back to BCS together one day and sweep off the dust to reveal our hidden messages on top of your cupboard, united together with Rusty, Lard and Jovan, back to fight Darth Vader! I'll miss you next year: twins can never be separated!

5. Danny Hickie

Danny is man for all seasons. He's been able to thrive under a heavy burden (his head). He's man enough to wear a dress more than once. He'll smoke terrible herbal cigarettes for the play. He's a b-baller who always plays GOOD. He's probably responsible for 20% of many people's math or science marks. He's strange because he doesn't eat chocolate. He can take a joke, even bad ones. People enjoy his dancing. I've known him since grade 2 and I'm sad that now the pipes are calling. Good luck Danny, and thanks for all for the fish.

6. Justine Lessard

What is there to say about the tallest bimbo I know? Justine certainly knows how to have Fun, even when the woodchucks get in the way, and even if she's going to be the only prefect stuck in Sherbrooke, it's only a matter of time before she finds her way to Russia- let's hope there's still some tennis players left when she's done with them! Salut et bonne chance pour la belle prefet de la belle province!

7. Erin Norwood

Erin managed to make it through the year without yelling "I quit!" a final time and running off to N.S., although she did manage to make it to Florida. She's funny and fun to be around, and she's a great person to have as a friend.

8. Kelli O'Reilly

Where is Kelli? Check the prefect room, Luis went that way just a little while ago. She might be changing for soccer, or may be trying to find out what's the calculus test on for next period. Or may be she is getting ready to have great fun in the next 30 hour famine. Her great personality is greatly appreciated, and have fun in Acadia!

9. Juno Park

This year we got the Cadet Major as one of our prefects ...intimidating much? Juno, the strong, sarcastic, great guy who though usually forgot about our weekly Thursday meetings, was a big asset to our "team". Always well dressed and hair styled to perfection, Juno was a great presence and motivator for the rest of us. Probably the most mysterious of the prefects, we wonder what great things he will achieve later on. Thanks for everything Juno!

10. Michiko Sakai

What can I say about Michiko? Her sense of fashion and style never stops! It is easy-breezy-Japanesey to have fun with such a great gal and her joining the 18 club makes it all the better! Crazy but not too crazy Michiko is going to make it to the University of Toronto and make the whole campus fall in love with her like we have at BCS. Her Japaneseyness and personality will never be forgotten. Gonna miss you next year!

11. Crystal Smith

Always with a smile, Crys will forever be our dancing Bermudian with the green garden shoes and the curling jacket. Whether she's in the art room at lunchtime, doing her hair (again), or talking to Ben on MSN, I'll never forget Crys for her genuine thoughtfulness and the loyal friendship she gave to us all.

Gillard House

It's that time of year again, that time when a bunch of enthusiastic girls come together to write the Gillard house article. This year, however, was different. Rather than having eager girls huddled around a laptop, fighting for the chance, we were left with an empty common room. So, of course, we began to search. We started where anyone would start – the kitchen. Wandering downstairs we found Steph Lee cooking some unknown green substance while “seemingly” talking to herself, Evy mooching at her side, shakin what she got in them jeans. On our way to the second floor we ran into Brianne, Milly, and Steph coming in from their evening stroll out in the cold. Michiko was hard at work, artistically drawing her boyfriend Testu-Kunn, “the house dog”, on the chalkboard. Reaching upstairs, MP was grasping her towel, frantically looking for Heidi, who was celebrating her birthday the only way she knew how – studying math. Down the hall, Cydia was on the phone and Destiny was doing the dishes AGAIN, rambling on about how this would never happen in LA (west side represent). Sofia was no where to be found, off with her fellow Mexicans as usual.

Yuki was trying on her new baseball cap while Elean was looking for Mrs. McGurk to open Tuck. We followed Jenny S. and Min A, who skipped rope down the hall, leading us to Wedgie's room, where she was having a moment with her Big Daddy (which is a cookie for all you dirty readers!). Elisabeth was dressing up her flamingo for the appropriate holiday, her blowup cactus by her side. Jae Hee and Jenny P. were cooking up a storm... and not cleaning up! Johanna was wandering up and down the hall in search of Milly, a picture of a hunky hockey player clutched in her hand. Choden was in the library, but we could still hear her laugh all the way from here. Ayla was taking a shower, singing Destiny's Child at the top of her lungs. Caroline tried to sing along but failed. Meanwhile, Mrs. D was lurking around the hall holding four pairs of shoes, mumbling something about how much money she was going to make. Moving down to the annex, Gwen wasn't in her room, but on a double date with Mario and Luigi (what a pimp). Tiara was talking to her computer (loudly), while Kirsten was enjoying the afternoon – celebrating TGIW. Claudia seemed to be out of the country... As for Erin, 'our Queen'... well she's boring, nothing to say there – but you can give her a 'pat' on the back for finally helping put together this article.

It was a Thursday evening all was quiet until the TV in the common room was turned on at 9:15 and all hell broke lose:

Max runs around frantically around the top floor to gather the famous O.C.-addicts: Andrea, Crys and Alex. Martina and Christiana come up from the downstairs common room with the insider scoop. As we enter the action packed common room the unique aroma of Asian noodles conjured up by Yuka, Yasuko, Yvonne and Wendy tickle our nostrils. Alissa and Grace peek in and say "we'll be back in ten minutes" for the usual fix. Near the microwave stand Sarah H. and Carolyn impatiently waiting for their creamy hot chocolate and marshmallows. Then suddenly, out of the blue walks in cutie pie Megumi modeling the latest trend in nightwear: the penguin suit. Eva, sits comfortably on the long couch, chomps mechanically on her bowl of Rice Krispies and Mel, sits next to her, talking away on her cell phone to an unknown male. The moans and groans are heard from Ally and Rebecca as Elizabeth tells them they have dish duty AGAIN. Christine is organizing her innumerable piles of clothing and Sarah B hides in her room talking to sexy Mexicans on skype. Nadia walks in with the recording of Gilmour Girls and Bianca laughing hysterically. Sheena dances to her own beat, and Angel walks in with her latest "major issue". Justine screams Jenna's name, who is in her room talking to a certain somebody. Maike twirls into the room proclaiming her love for a certain North boy. While fast forwarding through commercials Christy says, "isn't that 'Golden-Whoopiberg'?" Natasha complains about her hunger reminiscing of Ms. Frizzle's Saturday cooking, while Julie and Kat analyze the latest psychological thriller that has just been released in theatres. That wraps up this Glass night.....GOOD NIIIIIGHT!

McNaughton House

So where is everyone???

Mike Bibeau: sitting in his room sharpening skis.
Fraser Eliot: he's huddled under his sheets knitting socks.

Fernando Moreno: his eyes are closed and he's a-whistlin'.

Michael Tsatsoulis: his door is locked, painting his curtains black.

Abdul Al-Muhaidib: he goes to the stairs and shouts Yi-OWWWW!

Alex Belanger: life is perfect when he weaves baskets from scratch.

Aidan Bourke: he's gargling sand and shaving his chin.

Ricky Choi: downstairs trying to sleep in cupboards.

Jae Hong Chung: he's on the phone with his girlfriend Sabrina. You go boy!

Andrew Ewing: he's sending tokens to Kelloggs for a toy.

Alex Guay: he's sitting like Buddha and rubbing his belly.

Kent Huynh: alone singing some Andre Bocelli. Nice voice Kenty!

Jung Hoon Kim: he's running down the halls saying the man was right!

Robert McBride: is trying to memorize Shakespearean sonnets for his lover.

Eric Milic: Quietly making a house of beautiful cards. Don't blow it Eric!

Ben Shutz: looking in the mirror, colouring his teeth with hair gel.

James Zeller: is seeing how many online plane tickets he can purchase. You rascal!

Mohammed Al-Muhaidib: Outside, screaming to try and wake up a fox.

Phil Froncioni: practicing the language of the blue dolphin. You're hilarious!

Jake Gu: he's building stilts to jump to the moon. You might make it Jake!

James Oliver: He's building a radio to talk to Brazilian Priests.

Luis Akle: he's dancing with Grammy winner Usher in his room. Yeah!

Kevin Kang: in his room petting his ducks and his rabbits.

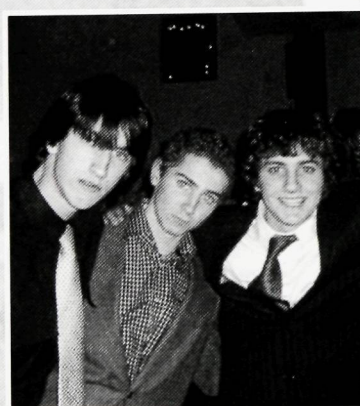

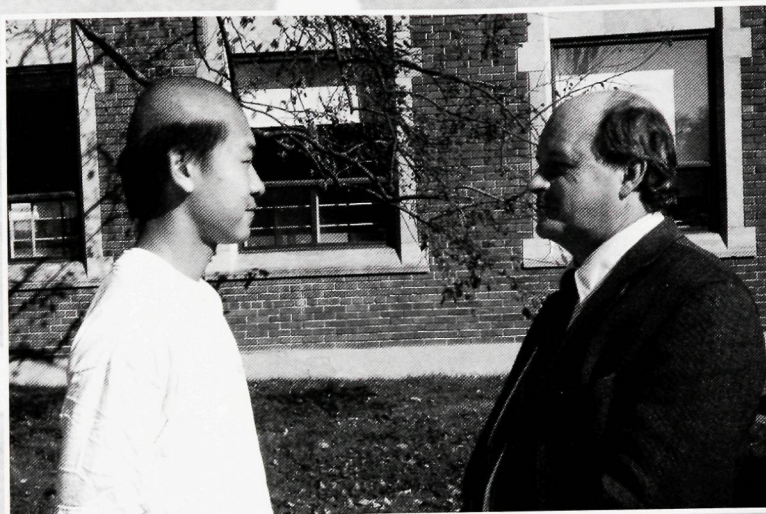

Juno Park: he's ironing all of his text books for straightness. Oh Juno!

Adam Tooke: he's designing a new pair of metal jeans for dancing. The Roboto!

Tim Naud: he's in his room writing the house article.

This is the real story behind closed doors of McNaughton House. We're brothers who love each other more than a man's wildest dreams and we will carry that bond as we make our futures really good ones. We hope you miss us all because we will miss you and we had a delicious time at school. Oh revoir from the boys that make every day like the tastiest sugar cookies a grandmother can conjure up. So let's commandeer a taxi and head straight towards the good days.

We love you school....

Ross House Boys

A Day in the Life of Ross Boys:

7:30AM – The early birds trickle in, complain about how they hate Ross, how it's too small, and sucks to spend time in, then sit down and refuse to move for the next hour.

8:15AM – Danny enters dressed as a woman, realizes he has no excuse for the day, and quickly changes into #1s.

8:20AM – Laythen runs up to a prefect to tell them Patrick has white socks.

8:21 AM – Patrick is sent in, but not as many times as he wants to be.

8:29AM – The front pew of Ross collapses under the combined weight of Shawn and Mike C. as they sleep through the hymn.

8:43AM – Chris D. sends in the entire house, in a desperate attempt to assert his imagined power. The rest of the house plots revenge.

9:02AM – Chris H, when challenged about his non-school blazer, confuses his interrogator by responding in binary.

9:07AM – Devanand is moved up a form.

9:42AM – Evan lectures some Glass Girls on What He Wouldn't Have Done.

10:38AM – Richard, James, Arnaud and Nicolas L-T draw an anarchy symbol on the floor and try desperately to channel Gael's spirit.

10:42AM – Tim, a modern-day Robin Hood, steals the prefect cookies and shares them with the less fortunate... ie: himself.

11:28AM – Stas comes to the shocking realization that someone has stolen his shoes, socks AND pants, while he is wearing them.

12:47PM – Brandon, proving how non-typical a Ross boy he really is, leaves the house with his girlfriend.

1:02PM – Gabriel strategically erases the whiteboard so it reads "Make a Hobo," then denies all involvement.

1:08PM – Felix and Matthew argue like an old married couple.

1:34PM – Hai-Long and Hai-Son seek to carve out unique identities from each other, Result: Hai-Long breaks arm and Hai-Son prank phone calls Williams.

1:58PM – Devanand finds his new form too easy, and is moved up again.

2:12PM – P.A. disappears, is presumed dead, or playing hockey.

2:35PM – Nathaniel has lost his coat.

3:35PM – Luke tries in vain to convince people he isn't actually part of the house.

3:55PM – Charles realizes that he is having a baby. Father Wiskerbasket is the suspected father.

4:00PM – Forrest eats expired chips out of his locker, and brags they were only 25 cents as they take him to the hospital.

4:05PM – Zach's giggle rings through the house. Then he claims he has a bow-flex body... yeah the before picture.

4:14PM – Vince practices his finger DDR, Duc feigns interest.

4:30PM – Mike A. and Iskender, weighted down with power tools, run off babbling about building a giant picnic table for next years skit.

4:56PM – Ryan lounges on the couch, unconcerned that we can't think up anything to write about him.

5:30PM – Devanand graduates.

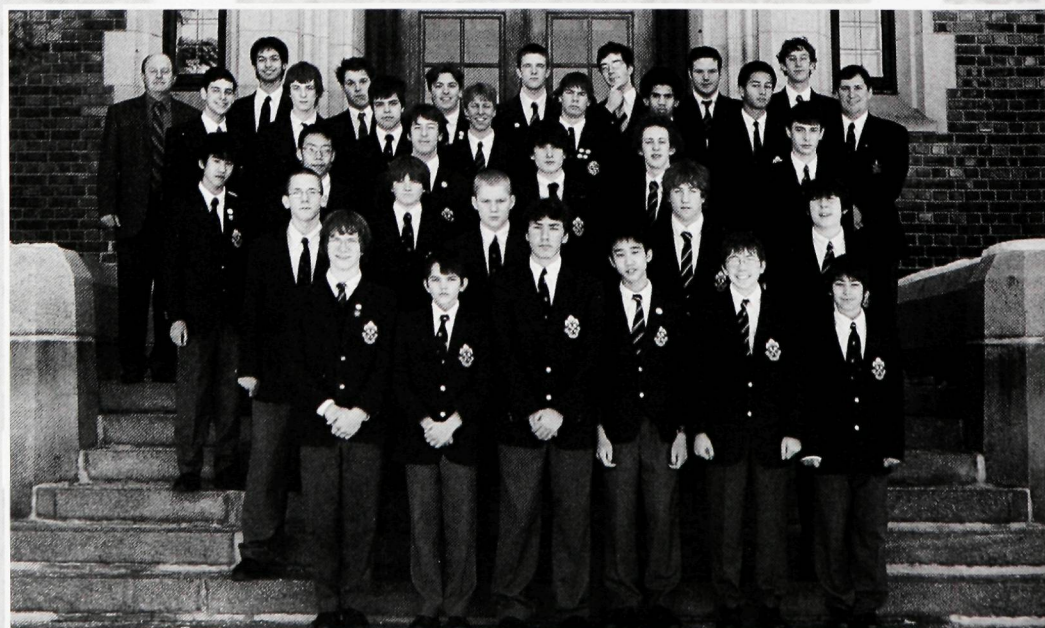

7:55PM – Nic B watches the epic battle between two stick figures on his laptop.

10:15PM – Julien proves that he really is a Creature of the Night, leaving Ross hours after the other stragglers.

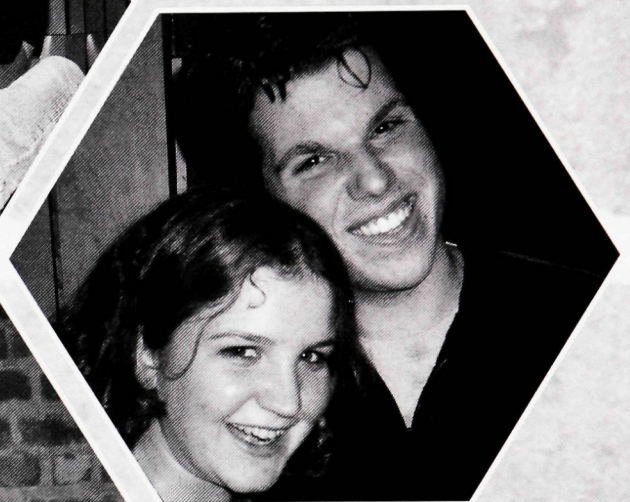

10:16PM – The Ross Common Room, empty of people, but filled with Ross Girls' trash, goes to sleep for the night.

Britany – ROCK ON!

Jennifer HM – “Will you dance with me please?”

Julia – “I can’t get no satisfaction from you”

Yasemin – always asking questions. Always.

Camille – probably off somewhere writing in French & English

Sarah-Maud – Brandon’s really tall, she’s really short, I wonder how they kiss.

Keira – I think I hear her coming down the hall

Julie – the chapel seems sunny today, she might need her sunglasses

Chrissa – see Heather

Heather – always blasting her music in the common room

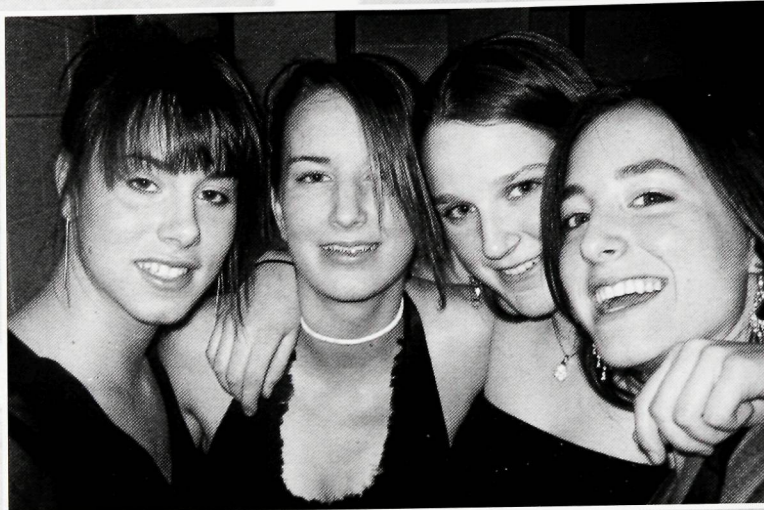

Sophie – under the bridge looking for her cell phone

Arianne – walks like a supermodel

Emilie-Ann – Our resident sports prodigy

Jennifer H – chose to spend her break being pulled by a dog.

Clémence – the living proof that caffeine doesn’t stunt your growth

Vero – Do you want a trophy for that?

Beth – I thought it was a burrrd! (apply French accent)

Bridget – she goes to bars in pyjama pants and her boyfriend wears unmatching shoes

Catherine B & Emilie – check McNaughton

Kaitlin – check Alex’s room

Catherine CC – going international

Chiao-Tien – she might be in the choir painting our flag

Jenn D – she looks like a mom and she’s loud. At least that’s what Clémence says

Kim – “Pas capable cristi!” is what she would say if she were here...

Janina – She won a speech competition, which I guess means she can talk more than we hear her *Justine – but, wait, you came back for 7th form and now you’re going to CEGEP?

Kelli – can’t seem to get rid of that Mexican boy. Miaou.

Krista – Does anyone know where Krista is? Oh wait, I think I hear Chris

Amy – So, tell us about C.

Smith House

If you had the privilege to visit Smith this year, these are the kind of things you may have seen during your stay.

You are walking towards this house, perhaps for the first time, intrigued by its magnificence and glory, or maybe just the bubbles spewing out of the second window from the left on the second floor. If not that, an example of the fine athletes are shown as Jae Won pounds down the monstrous dunks while Kevin makes a 3 point shot from the door to the net. You head for the door. Almost there, Jae Hak and Henry (with a burnt gating sheet) show up out of no where and get back inside. Heading upstairs, you realize Henry has already fallen asleep, and the interesting smell in his room alone is not enough to get you to stay. So you continue in the hallway, a bit worried because of a mix of the gruesomely powerful bass and the screaming that seems to be happening on top of you on the second floor. Juan Pablo, the grown up, is trying to keep things under control. Next is Q who is CLEARLY heard singing from outside his door. You walk in, but are greeted harshly when he tells you that if the door's open people can hear him sing, and he's not yet at his full potential. Before you can do anything, PLove comes down the hall to unlock the door with Mr. Kelso's key. He kindly offers some tuck which you deny, because you're not in the mood for a rice-soy-almond-raison-cereal bar, and you relax in his room until the strobe light goes on, and because you have a bit of a headache, you get out of there. You go check what's happening next with Andy and Tuan, who are hosting a Ross house game-athon, but not after too long Andy gets sucked back to his one third sleeping, one third studying, one third NBA live routine. Tae Won and Jae Hak, the unofficial residents of his room are studying together, with their seemingly endless supply of chips and cola. Upstairs you take a right and pop your head into Rodrigo and Reyes' room. You look at Rodrigo's sweet iPod and laptop, before turning to Reyes - "Is this your room?" "No Mein!!" This angers you, but you don't want to fight him because he only has one good arm, and appears to be on some sort of painkiller. You leave, but as you pass Rod's desk realize that its empty of all that was there just moments before. Next you go into Jamie's room, but he's maxin on the OC and can't be bothered with you unattractive people. Walking back into the hall, Philip is in the middle of a life and death match against Kevin, both with mean faces, and from the looks of it Phil had bitten off part of Kevin's leg. But Philip doesn't have to work that hard, because he made a computer program that beats up Kevin far more efficiently than any human could. Next you go into James' room, and within 2 seconds he has you in a headlock for some sort of reason, but then relaxes and returns to his Bruce Banner mentality. He's got to be careful though; he's got a girl hiding under the covers, one hiding in the closet, and one under his desk. He's worried about Kelso finding out? No all he has to worry about is that they don't find each other! Meanwhile, Krystian is working hard for carnival, getting all of his school work done early, and not being stubborn at all. Across the way is Mike and Vince, but because the room itself is like a Military Barracks in its intimidation, and like a Junk yard for its scattered clothes, we really have no idea what they are up to. Lastly is Launey's room. He's made good use of our talents this year, like our ability to walk to Len, and use our computers, while his talents weren't wasted either (namely being in position of a PS2). Kelso, Liverpool, Magon, and Crowther are all in the computer room, but 3 seconds of listening to the advanced English teacher conversations and Mr. Magon and I are out, and eventually Crowther too. Then eventually all of us are gone, but never for good, because the bond of Smith house is one that will survive through the ages. And one of these years we will have to win carnival or else Crowther's ghost will haunt the house for years to come.

Grier South House

From laps, check marks, and early bedtimes to computer confiscating and gating, the boys of Grier South enjoyed each others company and camaraderie so much that they barely noticed any of the above taking place. The love amongst this tight-knit group in south is strong and true, and you can feel it the moment you enter the front door of the house. Why not come on in for a tour.

As you enter the house, immediately to the right you will find five young faces gazing innocently at the computer screen. Sebastian and Servando are fighting over the keyboard and enjoying a match of "Elasto-Mania", while Vasken, Trystan, and Jesse take pleasure in a friendly competition of NBA Play Station. If you listen very carefully, you will be able to hear their muffled laughter from the hallway.

Continue forward to the common room. Here you will undoubtedly see Nicholas occupying his chair directly in front of the television. Carlos is pouring sugar on his cereal and listening to Luis Miguel on his i-Pod. Christian has opened the Tuck shop for the umpteenth time today. His feelings for the boys are so strong, he just can't say no.

Moving on...back down the hallway you will begin to smell something a little out of the ordinary. No, it is not the smell of freshly baked cookies coming from Faucher's oven, it is the tropical scent attached to Alejandro's heap of clothing. Monica is watching him and politely requesting that he cleans his room again today. He is trying to change the subject by asking "Where is Maya." Above the piles of laundry, Simon lies in his bed trying to stretch his lower back and figure out a new weight gain plan.

Onward, you will hear a blast from the past emerging from Toño's room. Peer your head into this room and you will see his roommate Kenny quietly bopping his head around to Guns 'N Roses lyrics (Take me down to paradise city where the grass is green and the girls are pretty) while focusing on an intense game of Counter Strike.

A little farther down the hall Eugenio and Christopher emerge from their room. Always happy, always getting along, and always living in perfect cleanliness, they open their doors to anyone who wants to just get away for a few minutes into their little piece of paradise.

Upstairs William is sleeping through the sound of machine guns and videogame banter going on between Marc and Joe. Min Sung is happily peering over their shoulders, knowing full well he has already maxed out his video game quota for the day. Luis (also listening to Luis Miguel), stretches his fingers after finishing a long MSN session and offers you a warm smile. Next door, Keiven brings comfort to residence by keeping his Christmas décor up for a good part of the year. Stop by Vincent and Fernando's room for some quick and easy beauty tips. They will happily teach you what creams will boost your complexion and how to keep your hair looking smooth and shiny, even when you are not in Mexico. Before leaving, take a quick swing to the basement where Hisashi will politely offer you some Japanese cuisine...all made from his rice cooker of course (taste at your won risk).

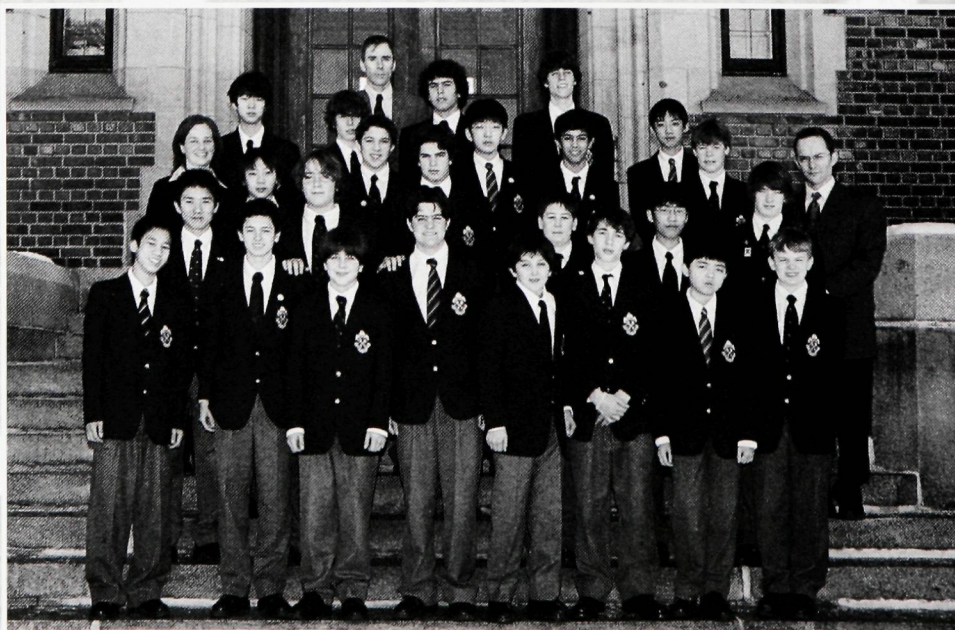

You have seen it all; our warm and welcoming home we call Grier South. Make sure you run into Danny, our happy-go-lucky form two student, on your way out. He will be happy to show you to the door. Thanks for visiting and please come back soon!

Only a year... It was short but it was good. Thanks to everyone who made it amazing. Thanks to the CLIQUE! I will miss you all ...

Ian Bichmann

For all of you, who supported a weird German: I want to thank all of you guys who gave me a hand during this year. It was a fun time, and the next year is going to be better, it can only go up! This is for all of you, who believe Germans are drinking, blond, blue eyed, war mongering giants. Well, 2 out of 5 isn't bad, is it?

IB

Maïke Bottcher

So, one year is over, and Maïke (me,haha) can talk english, almost. Thx to all the nice people here who believed in me and hold all the time to me. To my perfect boyfriend; I love you! Alex: best roommates forever, peace and gummibears. Willy my buddy, our world trip will come;). Milly, my lil energy packetsch,haha. My sweet german group, good times! Jenna,the irish angel...of course!

M. Bottcher

William Bradley

Spanish language news is here, Haha I got to sixth form I bet none of you saw this coming, I've been here for 5 years and may be a lifer scary thought eh?, germans are funny, anarchy in the uk rich and isk if u ever find out who busted your igloo tell me so I can smack him around and mike....keep doing wutever it waz ur doing (all $150 000 worth) and to the rest of u bcs ppl keep on truckin' buddies.

I suppose it's a sign of good times at high school if it seemed to go by really quickly, and my five grades at BCS went by quite rapidly. I have only a few regrets as I leave BCS, the biggest ones are for being sick so often (especially for carnival skits). I'd just like to thank all my friends (even if they are somewhat communist) and my teachers/coaches for making my high school so enjoyable.

This year was harder than I thought but I'm happy I had help. Price and Eddy have fun next year, 8.1, Kevin yah you were new this year but you did good. Sorry 'bout cadets last year, I was stupid. Most important Viveash, without you I wouldn't even have come back. Thanks for everything, and yah, see ya in Kelowna. Don't worry I'm coming. To my coaches, you've helped me a lot and especially to control my craziness, thanks. Peace.

Brr, that old Hickie place gives me the creeps, lucky I have the KentaBird. The following will have their backs against the wall when the revolution comes: Danny, Tim, Justine, Mat & Jamie, Iskender, Will, Mike, Grace, Keria, teachers & many other friends. I'll see u all UNDER THE TREES! We'll laugh about pawno schools & cracker lockers & have an applejuice. Finally, a pledge to all BCSers: Find me & I will help. Goodnight.

3 years at BCS were full of exciting experiences for me - something new and glad, maybe awful, which I will never be able to forget in the rest of my life. Following names I love to hear them after leaving BCS: Major P., JK, F. Face Family (JW, JHs), JHB, Soccer Crews, feasible but dissonant ska band (includes DH), HJ, SB & CC. Surely I will keep the happiest moment with u, JR. Thx and g'luck to u all!

Remove conservatism from politics but also from everyday life. Be liberal in what you do and be ready for a 180 by society away from rising fascism and towards a real future. Reject god and seek answers from men. Unite with them or be lost to those which hold power. Question all that government says is true and ask who gained from 9/11. You must perfect your country before it can give back to you.

Okay. Here it is. The new and improved, muscle-fied, gigantor, steroid pumping 125th anniversary edition of the Bishop's College School Magazine. This size upgrade is not a first for the Yearbook. For alternating periods throughout our history, we've grown from a pamphlet-sized bi-annual to the dimensions you have in your hands now. My theory is that people's bookshelves have altered in size and shape over time.

So, will we stick with the grandiosity? Maybe. Will we continue to jam pack the pages with everything that happens - from Mountain Day to the final chapel service? You bet.

For all those who have contributed their time, money, dedication, patience and/or craziness to this publication, we are eternally grateful. I hope you enjoy our efforts.

We are the Friendly Giant, signing off. For those who leave our halls, we'll miss you. For those returning catch you in 06 kids...
